Kitchen Kinks.
 Memoranda of an Old Housekeeper.
 When a paring or butcher-knife becomes loosened from the handle, take out the knife, fill the cavity with a mixture of mixed resin and brickdust, heat the shank very hot and press it in quickly; when cold, the whole will be firm and solid.
 To render tough meat or an old fowl more tender, cut the meat in suitable pieces for the table and subjoin the fowl. Rub the surface of each thoroughly with dry cooking soda, and let lie 12 or 18 hours. Then dip quickly in vinegar and cook at once.
 It is often desirable to brown the surface of some dishes for the table which cannot be placed in the oven. A common fire shovel is a very good substitute for a salamander. Heat it very hot and pass it quickly over the top, taking care to brown, not scorch.
 Brooms will last longer if they are dipped, before using, in hot soapuds until thoroughly soaked. If dipped in hot, soapy water weekly, the splints will become tough, though flexible. Put a screw-eye in the end of the handle, by which to suspend the broom from a long nail in a convenient place.
 When obliged to wash dishes in hard water, add half a teaspoonful of sweet milk to an ordinary sized dishpan full of water; the table ware will look brighter, and the pots and stew-pans wash more easily. Borax will soften the hardest water, and make the hands soft and smooth.
 To keep ice-water, make a pad by tacking a layer of cotton batting between several thicknesses of stout paper. Make it large enough so the vessel containing the water can be set in the center, and the outside be brought up and fastened securely over the top. To keep ice, put it in a small flannel cloth, then wrap in a flannel sheet or blanket.
 When carpets have been lifted and the straw or paper underneath removed, sprinkle the floor liberally with sawdust; then neither sweeping nor mopping need be done until the windows and woodwork have been cleaned. Dry earth is as good or better, but it is not pleasant to walk over. Before relaying a carpet, cover the floor with several thicknesses of old newspapers.
 To prevent new wooden bowls from cracking, pour hot lard into them from the frying kettle, then turn until every part is coated. Pour out the lard, leave 24 hours, then wash in hot, soapy water; or submerge the bowl, covering every part, in cold water, bring water to boiling and boil an hour. When water is cold, remove the bowl and dry slowly in a cold room. Paint the outside two or three coats.
 To dust a piano, use the very best quality of cotton flannel—that which is perfectly smooth and soft. Rub lightly to remove the dust; rub up and down over the finger-marks, always with the nap of the cloth toward the instrument. Remove the dust from the keys with a small bellows. Keep the instrument closed at night and in damp weather, and expose the keys to the sunshine when possible.
 Dry earth will sweeten old, musty jars, and remove the smell or taint from old fruit-cans. Bury them for several days under a porch, where the ground is dry, or under the corn-house or shed, where rain does not reach. Tainted hard or greasy may be sweetened by wrapping it in several thicknesses of cheese-cloth and burying it several days; it will come forth purified from the earth bath.
 Cut fresh suet in small pieces and let lie in cold water 24 hours, changing the water once. Drain well, put in an iron kettle with a smooth bottom, add half a teaspoonful of milk to each pound, and cook slowly until the fat is clear and slightly brown. Loosen occasionally from the bottom, but avoid stirring.
 When partly cool, strain. When mixed with lard and half with lard, you have an ideal fat for frying purposes.
 A quantity of spoiled vinegar will be found to be very convenient during the pickling season. Take an ounce each of whole allspice, cloves, celery seed, meric, pepper, ground mustard and white ginger, sliced. When mixed in a cheese-cloth bag and drop into a gallon and a half of vinegar. Keep tied closely, and use a little as needed to spice the vinegar used in making pickles. It is best to eat both the sweet and sour pickles; then they are sure to keep, and are ready to use without further care.
 Choose a bright, sunny day to paint a kitchen floor, and open doors and windows while it is drying. Dissolve three ounces of glue in three quarts of hot water. When it is quite dissolved, it will mix with the water, stir in until smooth three pounds of yellow ochre. With a whitewash brush, give the floor (which should be very clean and dry) a thick coat. When dry, which will be in a short time, with boiled oil and a common paint-brush, give the floor a good brushing. It can be used (the floor) in a comparatively short time.—(Country Gentleman.)

NORWAY LAKE.
 J. F. Frost visited at his brother's, last week.
 Edward Frost is visiting relatives at Kennebunkport.
 Dell Kilgore's family have moved on his place for the summer.
 Some have their corn and potatoes planted and some have not.
 R. K. Morrill has gone up country with his horses. His family intend going later.
 Mrs. William Dame and little daughter Avis from Auburn have been visiting at Edward Green's.
 Leroy Johnson's horse left him unceremoniously, one day, when he was gathering cream. He made good time down the hill, turning some sharp corners, but was stopped by some runaway accidents where no damage was done.
 Change in postal route: South Andover to East Andover, 2.50 miles and back, 6 times a week, with box delivery. From July 1, 1901, to June 30, 1903.
 Twenty thousand redspot trout fry were put in Lower Kearsar and Lovewell ponds, Fryeburg, last week. They came from one of the State fish hatcheries.
 O. J. Smith of Dixfield, who has been employed in Austin & Co.'s mill as rougher a few days, had the misfortune on Saturday last to saw the four fingers of his right hand very badly. He was removing his frock preparing to go to dinner when the accident occurred. In dinner when the accident occurred, his endeavor to remove the left sleeve, his right hand came in contact with the saw, touching the bones of the fingers and making ugly flesh wounds.

FOR AMBIDEXTERITY.
Scientists Seriously Considering the Feasibility of Both Hands.
 According to the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, scientists are now considering seriously the subject of ambidexterity, to which a novelist, Charles Reade, called attention in his characteristically emphatic fashion long ago.
 Men are born into the world with two hands equally capable of being trained to full usefulness. But from the moment of birth the right hand is carefully educated, while the left hand is sedulously neglected. The right hand becomes expert and strong. The left hand is allowed to remain inept and weak. The right hand becomes a marvelously capable tool. The left hand remains little better than a useless appendage. The man goes through life handicapped—less of a man than nature intended him to be.
 Scientists contend that this handicap is entirely artificial and needless, that there is no reason except tradition and custom why the hands should not be equally educated and equally "exterminous." Observed facts seem to bear out their contention. Every mother has noted that she must exercise care and vigilance to save her child from the awful misfortune of "left handedness," must continually check the child's natural tendency to use either hand indifferently, which probably means to pervert the child's inborn, correct instinct, which has survived centuries of race custom, to train both hands alike.
 Another fact that is worth noting is that hosts of men have trained themselves easily, almost unconsciously, to be ambidextrous in some one particular—to pitch a ball, to strike a blow, to play billiards, to shave themselves, to write as expertly with the left hand as with the right. Is it not probable that a child allowed from its birth to follow its own instincts in this respect, free even from the influences of example, would naturally develop ambidexterity in all respects?
 That ambidexterity is desirable there can be no question. Every one would be better off if he had two "right" hands instead of one "right" and one "left hand." That ambidexterity is attainable by every one seems exceedingly probable. Under these circumstances it seems rather senseless for a whole race to artificially handicap itself solely out of respect for a traditional custom, the reason for whose adoption has long since ceased to be operative.

Paint For Ships' Bottoms.
 If there were a reliable paint to be had that would keep foreign growths off the bottom of steel ships and also prevent corrosion or pitting, there would not be any great necessity for coppering the bottoms, but those who have had experience in the working of ships, trading to the orient, for instance, know that this is still far from realization. In the writer's experience it often appeared that the anticorrosive paint did not prevent corrosion, and the antifouling coat failed to prevent fouling for any great length of time at least. Hence the necessity for coppering.
 Several years ago the writer was connected with the engine department of a line of steamers trading between European ports and Manila and remembered that these vessels required docking, cleaning and coating every voyage. This was also the practice with Holt's tea ships and other fleets, and keen was the competition to secure the order for cleaning and coating these bottoms. It was no uncommon thing for a representative of a patent composition to place his article in competition with a rival paint by coating one side of the bottom, or even a portion of it, to show the superiority of its antifouling qualities. An acquaintance who was very enthusiastic over the superior merits of his composition painted on the port bottom of a certain vessel, and on her return from an eastern voyage and before she entered the drydock, he invited the shipowners to a summer resort near the dock and see for themselves the superior value of such an article as he sold. But when the dock was pumped out the starboard bottom was seen to be almost clean after a four months' voyage, while the port bottom, which had been coated with his composition, was thickly covered with barnacles and long green grass. This is no romance, and similar results may have been seen by many.—Joseph R. Oldham in Cassier's Magazine for January.

American Wealth.
 In the last ten years the United States has increased its wealth $26,000,000,000, which makes the wealth of the nation $91,000,000,000. This gives an average per capita wealth of $1,195. This is not so great as per capita wealth as Great Britain's, for her figures are $1,300 for each inhabitant. But her aggregate wealth sinks into the background before ours, for she has only $50,000,000,000 against our $91,000,000,000. Her increase in wealth in ten years is $19,000,000,000, as against our $26,000,000,000. The increase in wealth in this country in the last ten years has been $387 for each inhabitant.—New York Press.

Failure of Lyddite.
 The high explosive lyddite, which was used extensively by the British in the South African war, is now said to have been deficient in several important respects, and it is said that few of the shells fired from the fieldpieces exploded satisfactorily.

Bank Men Pleased.
 All the customers of the banks and those who in any way have occasion to use war revenue stamps are pleased at the prospect of being released from the expense and trouble of putting stamps on checks, legal processes and patent medicine and notes after July 1, 1901. It will also be a great relief to banks, town clerks and others who find it necessary to pay sharp attention that the stickers are attached. Bank men are especially joyous as a great many checks have been drawn by people without affixing the necessary stamps, in which case the banks had to put them on and make a separate charge to the drawer of the check, all of which made much extra work.
 The bank people say that they do not think there has been any difference in the number of checks drawn by depositors on account of the stamps, but the relief from such a necessity will be greatly appreciated.
 The repeal of the law withdraws war revenue stamps from all documents after July 1, with the exception of transfer deeds over $2500, which are taxed 50 cents on a thousand.

A Good Cough Medicine.
 It speaks well for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy when druggists use it in their own families in preference to any other. "I have seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past five years with complete satisfaction to myself and customers," says Druggist J. Goldsmith, Van Etten, N. Y. "I have always used it in my own family both for ordinary coughs and colds and for the cough following a gripe, and find it very efficacious." For sale by Noyes Drug Store, Norway; F. A.  The following of local interest is from the Richmond, Va., Evening Leader of May 14th: The resignation of this estimable gentleman much regretted—Superintendent Aaron D. Cotton of the Davis Boat and Shovel Company at the State penitentiary, has resigned his position, to take effect, July 1st. During the three years he has been with this company he has won the confidence and esteem of all, and his resignation is deeply regretted by the company and State officials, as he was highly regarded as a business man. As a disciplinarian he is without a peer. A true Christian gentleman, whose influence for good has been felt, from the highest official to the prisoner in his cell. He will spend the summer at his home in Vermont. Mr. Cotton is an Oxford county boy and grandson of the late Aaron Davis of Woodstock. Previous to accepting the position at Richmond, Va., he was superintendent at the Vermont State prison for fifteen years, for W. D. Brackett & Co. of Boston.

In almost every walk of life there have been great women. But has there ever been a woman who has reached the very highest pinnacle in any field? In the June Cosmopolitan, Ella Wheeler Wilcox answers this question in the negative and declares that even in the essentially feminine vocations of cooking, dress-making and millinery men excel women. "Women," says Mrs. Wilcox, "have not the concentration which gives a clear perspective. They lack system and patience and are distracted by details or turned aside by vanity."

A Worthy Successor.
 "Something New Under the Sun."
 All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acids, cathartics and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner, who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES THE GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.
 "SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now guaranteed as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.
 CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

W. C. T. U. Purity Department.

Mrs. Mabel L. Conklin of New York, lecturer and organizer of the National
W. C. T. U. and White Cross Society
for men, was in town from Saturday afternoon till Tuesday afternoon, a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Stone. Mrs. Conklin lectured in the Baptist church at South Paris on Sunday afternoon on "Reasons why Young Men Go Astray," and in the Congregational church at Norway in the evening.
Monday afternoon she spoke in the Concert Hall before an audience of women and girls of fourteen or more years; Monday evening in Norway Baptist church to the men and boys and on Tuesday afternoon at Norway Methodist church to mothers. Mrs. Conklin came here under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., and they are to be congratulated on bringing to town so able, interesting and convincing a speaker. Her theme was social purity. She talks in a straightforward, no-nonsense style, and gives a clear view of the moral topic which she discusses.

Nearly a dozen new members were secured for the W. C. T. U. at the South Paris meeting.

Sunday evening, the audience room at the Congregational church was well filled, and Mrs. Conklin gave a powerful sermon on "Power and Responsibility of the Individual."

Monday afternoon, the "Address to Girls" at Concert Hall was a beautiful informal and practical talk. The girl sets her ideals of womanhood with Mrs. Conklin's cannot fail to be a blessing to the world.

The "Talk to Men," Monday evening,
at the Baptist church was well worth every man's thought. It was greatly to be lamented that there was a misunderstanding as to time of this meeting so that the attendance was rather small, for every man ought to have heard this talk.

The last lecture of the course was at the Methodist church, Tuesday afternoon, was well attended. Mrs. Conklin spoke on "Telling the Truth to Children," and the beautiful thoughts expressed cannot fail to be a help and inspiration to every woman who heard them.

While in Norway by house to house
cannass and invitational meetings, Mrs.
Conklin obtained fifty-four new members for the W. C. T. U. and the Y. W.
C. T. U.

Surely the noble character of Mrs.
Conklin so clearly shown in her earnest words and untiring efforts to do good must inspire all who heard her to an earnest determination to more work.
We especially recall how Mrs. Conklin emphasized the fact that the strength of a union depends on the efforts of each individual member. She cited a union of which she knew personally whose President, a blind and bed-ridden man, said, "This was the most vigorous union she knew of."

Mrs. Conklin was born in Lafayette, Ind. At fifteen she went as a student to Gregg Seminary in Chicago and was graduated from Iowa College in 1882.
For three years she had charge of the vocal department of Callahan College, Des Moines, Iowa. As a pianist she served with Emil Leibling of Chicago and Otto Schmidt of Germany. In 1888 she married David Bruce Conklin of Brooklyn, N. Y. She has been a constant contributor to the Evening Mail and soprano soloist in Plymouth church and the House of Hope at St. Paul, Minn. Her maiden name was Lanphere. She was an only child. Her parents are still living in Chicago.

In 1895 Frances Willard found her working in a local union of the W. C. T. U.
of Hot Springs, Ark., where she and Mr. Conklin were spending the winter, and recognizing her ability made her known to the National Purity Superintendent. In 1896 the secretary appointed her as White Cross secretary. Her trained voice is most effective in leading chorals of voices at the meetings.
She has added scores of members to the societies for which she is working.

Methodist churches of this place, responded to the call from the W. C. T. U.

hibition day, it being the fiftieth anniversary of the prohibition law. Good temperance sermons were listened to at each place.

Those who have planted corn do not expect it will ever come up. Tomato

3, the storm seems to have "capped the more will come—by giving us a hail storm. The hail stones were as large as peas and could be picked up by the handful when the shower was over.

The Rebekahs of West Paris Lodge
hold an entertainment at Dunham's hall, Thursday evening, June 6th, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, tableaux, reading by Frank Kimball of South Paris, and others. A pleasing feature of the evening will be a sash drill by twelve ladies. After the entertainment a social time is expected with refreshments. All come and have a good time.

Representatives of the Universalist and Free Baptist societies met at the Free Baptist church, one day last week, and had a house cleaning. All worked with a will and before the day was gone everything looked very nice and clean.
As they worked, their history was discussed. The church was built some thirty-five years ago. Only a very few of those who were interested in its erection are living. Among those are Geo.
Berry and wife, Mrs. Marshall and Geo.
Bryant and wife. It was then a union church.

Memorial day was a disappointment on account of the inclemency of the weather, for we were deprived of the privilege of listening to the addresses
furnished us by our South Paris friends.
Nevertheless we observed the day as best we could under the circumstances, which was surely patriotic if not grand.
The scholars and teachers assembled at the appointed time and place and Geo.
Bryant, an old comrade, distributed the flags among the older children and Mrs.
L. C. Bates made large bouquets of wild flowers, cherry blossoms and columbine and gave to each of the younger children. All formed in line two by two and marched to the cemetery with Mr. Bryant, who carried a basket of wreaths made of evergreens and wild flowers, as leader and captain, followed by a few interested older people. At the cemetery prayer was offered by Rev.
R. A. Rich, remarks by Mr. Bryant, then
